BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

QUEEN MARY of England, good and kind, will give a big ball in Buckingham palace, something she has not done in seven years. Her object is to give a happy evening to young members of British society. Recently there have been few parties this season."

That must be very pleasing to the young members of British society and interesting for the British coal miners out of a job. There isn't, unfortunately, room big enough to provide dancing space for the 100,000.

THE CASE of Al Capone, who pleads guilty of violating income tax and prohibition laws, shows that the government can and can-not. It can enforce its income tax laws, and so the treasury department seizes Capone. It cannot enforce prohibition laws, and Capone's business will go on as usual while he is in prison, directed secretly by himself, through lieutenants.

IN HUNGARY, Rose Chordas, aged 58, and Amelia Szabo, 43, murdered four members of their families. One woman fainted when she saw the gallows, and never heard her sentence read. The other listened to the sentence. Both, unconscious, were literally carried to the gallows by the hangman who did his work with tears rolling down his cheeks.

An apprentice hangman, Botos, learning the trade and seeing the real hangman tremble and weep profusely, changed his mind about a profession.

That execution will interest civilized historians of the future, when they write our history.

UNITED STATES STEEL was weak again yesterday, and the steel industry showed a drop of two per cent in mill operations, to 58 per cent of capacity.

It should be remembered that steel recovery must follow other recoveries.

To help Steel stocks the railroads must have money to buy what they need and automobile demand must increase. Building takes money and men with money will hardly order steel for office buildings or hotels of doubtful profit, while they can buy stocks for half what they are worth.

The bargains in stocks must disappear before Steel and some other things can revive.

THE MANGANESE and lumber men say that, while Russia ships a small volume, the price cutting is demoralizing.

The match industry is annoyed when Uncle Sam buys all the matches for his army from Russia. The candy industry here and in Britain says Russian price-cutting menaces its existence.

It is all as sad as sad can be, but one of two things must be done—either shut out imports from Russia entirely, or learn to compete with Russia.

Assuming that all Russian labor is slave labor, as you are tearfully told, we must make machines that will compete with Russia's slaves.

No Indian slave of the old days, pulling the cord of a punkah to fan his sleeping master, could compete even at 5 cents a day with one of our electric fans, or do the work as well.

THE RAILROADS ask the interstate commerce commission for an increase in rates that would yield $400,000,000 a year, warning that diminishing railroad profits threaten the soundness of trust investments in railroad bonds.

There is a better reason for giving the railroads more money. If they don't have it they will be compelled to reduce wages and economize on service. They cannot pay their bills with anything but money.

And even if wages are not actually reduced," the "station agent."

WORK ON NEW MURDER CLUE IN LIMA CASE

Police Strike Trail Expected To Lead to Body of Truesdale.

CALLED THRILL SLAYING

Youth and Miss Woods Killed by Gang, Officers Believe.

By The Associated Press

LIMA, O., June 18—Lima police rushed to an unnamed spot this afternoon for the body of Earl Truesdale, 20, who had been missing for three weeks. While authorities were reticent as to the new "hot tip" in the case, they said their information indicated Truesdale, and his companion, Thelma Woods, 17, were murdered by a gang the night of memorial day.

Miss Woods body was found in a stone quarry pool. It had been weighted down with a rock, and there were wounds on the head.

Police officials, while refusing to divulge the source of their latest information, said they believed the gang, all under the influence of liquor, murdered the couple for a "thrill." The new clue, they said, disclosed how Truesdale's body was disposed of—either hidden or buried at a spot far from the pool. Officers were sent out to locate the spot and investigate.

Authorities added that if the new information proves correct, a man held as a suspect will be released, since he is not implicated with the gang.

In the meantime, pumpers had reduced the water in the pool to six feet. Their work was hampered somewhat by a cave-in.

Truesdale and Miss Woods disappeared after a dance. They were recent acquaintances. Truesdale's auto was found near the pool, and his car blanket was washed from the water. Pumpers were put to work and a few days later the girl's body, with a large rock attached to it by a rope, was recovered from the water.

PLANS WAR AGAINST BIG RUM VIOLATORS

Woodcock Plans Intensive Campaign on Large Scale Liquor Violators.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 18—The zero hour for the biggest sustained offensive in prohibition history against leaders of the illicit liquor industry was set for July 15 today by federal officials.

Exactly 15 days before that date, Prohibition Director Woodcock said a crop of 350 new dry agents will be concentrated in a dozen cities spread from coast to coast for an intensive two weeks' training course.

Added to the present force of more than 1,500 to make it the biggest and best trained federal dry army in history, he said, they will be instructed specifically to concentrate on the large scale commercial violators and the higher-ups of the liquor gangs, leaving the speakeasy and small-time bootlegger principally to local enforcement.

Long Preparations

Woodcock acknowledged that for the last two or three months his office had been "bending every effort" toward the date when these new men, selected from among thousands of applicants, could be thrown into the field.

The federal dry chief made clear, however, that the new offensive should not be considered as a "drive" in the sense that it would be a spectacular effort confined to any one period. He stressed his

Lincoln Tenets Apply to Needs Today, Hoover Says

Remain as Solution to Problems of Nation, President Declares in Address Rededicating Tomb.

By The Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 18—Standing before the tomb of Lincoln, President Hoover yesterday called for a rededication of the citizenry to the service and ideals of the nation.

"The eternal principles of truth, justice and right, never more clearly stated than by Lincoln, remain the solvent for the problems and perplexities of every age and of our day," he said, in dedicating the remodeled tomb of the Civil war time President.

"It is to those who, like Lincoln, have made these principles serve the needs of mankind that the world pays its homage. At his shrine we light the torch of our rededication to the service and ideals of the nation which he loved and served with the last full measure of devotion."

The text of the President's speech follows, in part:

"The people of Illinois have taken just pride in the restoration and beautification of the tomb of their greatest citizen—Abraham Lincoln, the sixteenth President of the United States. This memorial was erected and dedicated 37 years ago. Another great citizen of Illinois—the eighteenth President of the United States, Ulysses S. Grant—made the address on that occasion. It is proper that a President of the United States should take part in its rededication at this time.

Shrine for All

"This, the tomb of Lincoln, is a shrine to all Americans. The stone and marble of all of our great national shrines are more than physical reminders of the mighty past of our country. They are symbols of things of the spirit. Through the men and deeds they commemorate they renew our national ideals and our aspirations. It is refreshment of the national soul to assemble in these places and to direct the thoughts of our people to these occasions and to recall the men and their deeds which builded the republic. It is an awakening of pride in the glories of the past and an inspiration to faith in the future. These are the springs which replenish that most sacred stream of human emotions—patriotism.

"The six decades which have passed since Lincoln's death have written on the scrolls of history changes bewildering in their variety, momentous in their consequences. They have broadened and enriched life beyond the imagination of Lincoln's contemporaries. The years have not only yielded rich treasures, material and spiritual, but they have brought challenges to a readjustment both by government and individuals, to a changing world. Our country has become powerful among nations. It is charged with infinitely new responsibilities both at home and abroad.

"What a poet has called the endless adventure, the government of men, discloses new and changing human needs from generation to generation. As we scan our history even since his day, who can doubt Lincoln's own words that our national heritage is 'worth the keeping.' And it was Lincoln who stated and restated in impressive terms that its keeping rests upon obedience and enforcement of law. There can be no man in our country who, either by his position or his influence, stands above the law. That the republic cannot admit and still live. For ours is a government of laws and a society of ordered liberty safeguarded only by law."

Local Man Adds To Record Begun in Lincoln's Day

The dedication of the Harding memorial by President Hoover and other notables was of special interest to one Marion man, John H. Stoll, for it provided him an opportunity to bring up to date a unique record. Having seen Hoover, the thirty-first President, Mr. Stoll has seen all the Presidents but three since Lincoln, the sixteenth.

It was during Lincoln's campaign for the presidency that Mr. Stoll saw him and heard him speak at Plymouth, Ind., in 1860. Two days later he heard Stephen A. Douglas speak from the same platform.

Another unusual incident in Mr. Stoll's life is that the house in which he was born in Wooster once belonged to the father of Mrs. Hoover and was built by her grandfather. This house has now been torn down to make way for a filling station.

PLAN HOMECOMING

Former Pupils of Richwood Township School To Hold Picnic

Plans are being completed for the fourth annual homecoming of former and present teachers and pupils of District No 1 school, Richland township, and their families to be held Sunday, June 28 at the school building. The school was formerly known as the Gompf district.

P. Retterer, Dennis Gompf, Mrs. L. A. Smithson and Mrs. John Oborn, program. William Keener is treasurer of the organization and L. A. Smithson is secretary.

DIVORCE ACTIONS

Two Petitions and Answer and Cross Petition Filed in Court.

Two petitions for divorce and an answer and cross petition in another divorce proceedings were filed in the office of Everett B. Grigsby, clerk of the common pleas court, yesterday afternoon.

Charging wilful absence for three years, gross neglect and extreme cruelty, Dorothy Kemmerly has filed suit for divorce from Ralph Kemmerly. A separation agreement has been reached, which the plaintiff wishes continued. She asks for custody of their two minor children. They were married Aug 24, 1920. Frank Wiedeman is attorney for Mrs. Kemmerly.

Mabel A. Holt filed suit for divorce from Bert Holt, charging gross neglect and extreme cruelty. They separated Jan. 7, 1931, and have not been living together since, according to her petition. They were married March 18, 1918, the petition shows. Homer E. Johnson is attorney for Mrs. Holt.

Divorce and alimony are sought by Thelma Yohn in an answer and cross petition filed in the divorce action brought against her by Walter Yohn. She charges he has obliged her to live in furnished rooms with objectionable persons, and to do housework for an income. A motion for temporary alimony for the defendant was also filed in the case. Mrs. Yohn is represented by Frank Wiedemann.

Sets Up Claim

Answer of the Marion County bank setting up that institution's claim for $187.87 against the Marion Development Co. was filed yesterday in the common pleas court action of the Home Building, Savings & Loan Co. against William J. Holt and others. C. C. Fisher is attorney for the bank.

How One Woman Lost 102 Lbs. of Fat

Almost Unbelievable—Nevertheless True

Dear Friends:

You advertise Kruschen Salts for reducing, so I finally tried them and when I started I weighed 219 pounds and when I took them for a year and 3 weeks, I lost exactly 102 pounds.

I am 23 years old and I look at least 5 years younger now than I did when I was fat. I have a picture of myself before and after so if you want to see them let me know.

I am always telling my friends about the wonderful salts. I am always advertising them.

I took 2 bottles every month for a year and 3 weeks. It amounted to $25 for reducing 102 pounds but it was worth it. If I can be of any help to you let me know.

Yours truly, Miss Nellie Simpson, 1903 Wayne Street, Swissvale, Pa., Oct. 31, 1930.

The Modern Safe Way—Right Way to Lose Fat

Just take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast.

You can hasten the reducing action of Kruschen by going lighter on potatoes, pastry and fatty meats.

Women everywhere are overjoyed with this marvelous reducing treatment. Frequently pound by pound of surplus fat leaves and soon you possess that trim, slender figure you've always craved.

An 85c bottle of Kruschen (lasts 4 weeks) is sold by leading druggists the world over—so start this SAFE method to lose ugly fat TODAY! Heuney & Cooper sells lots of it.—Adv.

"The essential effect of the Ultra Violet is the production of better tobacco and of cigarettes regarded by virtually all smokers who have tested them as milder and with a lesser tendency to cause throat irritation."

An Unqualified Success.

With the dedication a thing of the past and several days having passed in which to get the feeling of the public, home folks and visitors alike, in regard to the manner of its handling, Tuesday, June 16, may be set down as another big day when Marion did credit to herself. The civic spirit manifested, the readiness with which citizens cooperated to make the occasion the great success it proved to be was nothing less than inspiring. And the assistance rendered by the federal and state authorities in supplying troops for the facilitating of traffic and the handling of the throng at the scene of the dedication was of a value almost beyond reckoning.

The county authorities, the city authorities, the police, the boy scouts, many organizations and individual citizens acted as one to make the day a success. It was a splendid demonstration of utter unselfishness, of a general desire to be helpful, and this newspaper speaks for the Harding Memorial association in appreciation of the splendid civic spirit shown.

Marion never appeared to better advantage physically. Foliage and bloom were at their best, and the decorations were in excellent taste. The temperature was friendly, fleecy clouds and a light breeze tempering the heat of the sun. The program of the afternoon was an excellent one, carried out without a hitch, the time schedule arranged having been bettered by several minutes. All told "Dedication" day will stand in local history as another occasion when the people of Marion did honor to themselves by the manner in which they did honor to those who came to us to do honor to our distinguished dead.

Incidentally, it may not be out of place to call attention to the fact that the rule held true to the end. From and including "Notification" day, on the many days during the campaign of 1920 when visiting delegations came to the city daily, excepting Sunday, on the days of the funerals of Mr. and Mrs. Harding and finally on "Dedication" day Mother Nature was kind. "Harding" weather prevailed throughout.

The tip from Washington now is that the deficit at the end of the present month will be somewhat less than $950,000,000, instead of more than $1,000,000,000 as heretofore predicted, and may not be more than $900,000,000. Even the minimum figures is hardly one alongside which the country can lie down and dream peaceful dreams.

Controlling the Airplane.

Another strap in the legislative harness that is being assembled to control the airplane has been riveted in place summarily following an executive order from President Hoover to Secretary Lamont of the commerce department.

Speakers and listeners at the dedication ceremonies of the Harding memorial, Tuesday, were irritated by three planes, one of which flew near the memorial constantly during the exercises. Their motors made a deafening racket.

Many of the distinguished people on the platform were noted to be made uncomfortable by the disturbance, and on at least one occasion the President frowned at the planes. It was an uncomfortable situation for every one concerned, with the possible exception of the aviators, who probably didn't realize how unwelcome their free show was becoming to the thousands below who wanted to hear the speeches being made.

The order given to Mr. Lamont, as a result of the incident, bars crowds in the open from being disturbed and endangered by low-flying airplanes. It is a restriction duplicating local restrictions in many communities which have barred airplanes from flying over crowds.

The airplane is a comparatively new thing and various legislative controls necessary to keep it in check are manifesting themselves slowly. Aviators can thank the three pilots who flew about the Harding memorial Tuesday for spoiling a hitherto unrestricted privilege.

A Friendly Gesture.

The account of the unveiling in New York City of the Dover Patrol monument, a British tribute to American naval cooperation in the World war, breathes the friendly intimacy of a warm handclasp between old friends.

The monument commemorates the service to allied shipping given by this nation in the English channel, where 2,000 lives were lost during the World war in the attempt to keep the channel safe from German invasion. United States ships and naval personnel united with the British to cooperate without friction in a situation where everything was designed to encourage hard feeling. Though not dedicated to the purpose, the monument also commemorates the ability of the British to cooperate with Americans, despite the tenseness of their interest in the English channel.

It is another link forged in the chain of friendship between Great Britain and the United States—a gracious tribute from the British whose appeal of friendship is not wasted on Americans.

Our Hospital Development.

There is not one of us within the reach of the benefits of Marion City hospital who should not be highly gratified that efforts are now being made, and quite successfully, to improve its service and facilities to the sick and injured who must depend upon the hospital and its staff of physicians.

Aside from gratification, we should extend our full interest and every possible cooperation, because it is not easy to standardize a hospital that has never quite met the minimum requirements of the American College of Surgeons, which has given its stamp of approval to more than half the hospitals of the country.

Standardization, in hospital vernacular, means definite acceptance of the rules and regulations laid down by the American college in the matter of equipment and, more particularly, for the guidance and efficiency of physicians and surgeons who compose the staff of the hospital. The object is to give the patient every possible assurance that nothing has been left undone for proper treatment and care. If we are not interested in a motive such as this, then we are not concerned with the protection and preservation of life.

Marion has been fortunate with respect to the absence of political maneuvering in the operation of its hospital. The continuance of that policy is more definitely assured by its standardization. As a matter of fact, the benefits of the institution are advanced all along the line, and since it is strictly a question of organization, it is one improvement in the return for the taxpayer's dollar that comes without increased cost.

Marion's medical fraternity is entitled to hearty public approval and confidence for the service contemplated in this readjustment. Director of Public Safety Sonnanstine, under whose jurisdiction the hospital operates and to whom the staff is responsible in the final analysis, has acted wisely in his decision to accentuate the public benefits from our institution. He should be accorded complete and sympathetic support.

Dr. Miles Porter, who represents the American College of Surgeons, will speak to Marion doctors this evening. The meeting is open to the public. He should be heard by a sufficient number of interested citizens to indicate that we are sincerely eager to place Marion's hospital on the sound basis of efficiency which will warrant his organization's unqualified approval.

The Conservative Trend.

A brunet, weight 127 pounds, height five feet, six inches, has taken the title, the prize money and the adulation of the crowd at the international beauty pageant in Galveston. Another brunet, took third prize. An American girl, a blonde, was second. Two against one for the brunets. And in the country where "gentlemen prefer blondes."

Beauty pageants must be good for something. Since there is general agreement that they don't succeed in selecting real beauty, perhaps they can be used as indicating trends.

There is the comparative symbolism of blondes and brunets in American lore, for instance. A blonde, a typical American blonde that is, fairly shrieks the spirit of devil-may-care prosperity. Her place is ideally in the center of the gay-life whirl; when transplanted into sedate routines she loses her glitter.

A brunet, on the other hand, is a symbol of a longing for certainty and the assurance of the peaceful well-being to be found in a well-regulated home—with many necessary individual exceptions. A brunet aged seventeen years and weighing close to 130 pounds, one might say, is a symbol of longing for exceedingly comfortable certainty. Selecting her as a beauty queen over a typical American blonde amounts to a confession that the judges have lost interest in the uncertain, flashing froth of the whoopee spirit, and are interested instead in steady, undeviating certainty. And if that isn't a sign of the times nothing could be. The professional prognosticators had best seize upon it at once. It's better than freight car loadings or bank clearances as an indication of what is happening.

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh is now possessed of a fourth honorary college degree, Princeton having made him a master of science. What advantage may be gained by the colonel from these honorary degrees is naturally a matter for conjecture, but if they will in any way aid him in his forthcoming flight with his wife to Asia, nobody will begrudge him their possession.

Within the Law.

President Hoover, in his address at Indianapolis Monday night, sharply criticized market bears who "make their contributions to distress by raids on our markets with purpose to profit from depreciation of securities and commodities." Criticism is the way of reaching them because they are "within the law," despite the fact they are "equally condemned by our public and business opinion * * * are by no means helpful to the nation" and are subverting the financial structure.

The President said also that the federal reserve system is inadequate to prevent a large diversion of capital and bank deposits from commercial and industrial business into wasteful speculation and stock promotion, and questioned whether "the facilities of our security and commodity exchanges are not being used to create illegitimate speculation and intensify depressions."

This open criticism of stock market operations will be interpreted as a sign that market reform is about to be attempted under administrative sponsorship. The matter came up a number of times in the seventy-first congress without result, and has been "seen" as an issue several times in recent years. The stock market crash of 1929, which was supposed to have been connected with short selling by one school of opinion, encouraged demands for investigation of the market.

The phrase, "within the law," stands in the way, however. Concerning short selling, it has been claimed that contracts to deliver something in the future which the contractor does not possess are common to many types of business: that is construction. Similar arguments on other points of practice probably would frustrate any attempt to make sweeping market reforms, even though backed by the chief executive, himself.

HIS "SHORTS."

Editorial Opinion.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

President Hoover is not a spectacular man. He lacks the magnetism of Roosevelt, the fervor and eloquence of Wilson. He has the Quaker's retiring disposition, the business man's inclination to subordinate himself to the subject in hand. So he went through his first years in the White House without receiving the credit he deserved. Too quiet and unassuming, he disappointed those who expected a wonder-worker, and who did not see that while he was powerless to avert the disaster which was engulfing this country along with the rest of the world he was actually doing good work in minimizing its evils.

Mr. Hoover took criticism silently during his first two years. Lately he has been defending himself, fighting, as much as a Quaker fights, to let the country know that he has not been idle, and explaining the constructive policies he has pursued to prevent suffering and hasten, insofar as any man is able to hasten, the return of prosperity. Last night he was at his best. While he is always informative in dealing with questions of business and economics, having at his finger tips an extraordinary wealth of authoritative material, he brought something more to his address to the Indiana editors. He pictured the human side of his work, he showed the ideals which underlie his policies, and he told of the hopes and the visions which he, as President, is laboring to make realities.

Mr. Hoover's speech may not have been thrilling, but it was deeply stirring to those who heard him offer his plan in opposition to the critics who have been urging a plan of the Russian kind. And it could not help having the effect of encouraging his hearers to forget the past and to look forward to a future in which the country's prosperity and happiness will be on a sounder basis than before.—Youngstown Vindicator, June 16.

THE CRIPPLED NAUTILUS.

If ever there was a fortunate mischance, it was that which occurred to disable the submarine, Nautilus, on its voyage across the Atlantic to reach a point for starting on its North polar expedition under the ice. For in all likelihood the exhaustion of the craft's power and the crippling of its machinery, due to adverse weather in the Atlantic crossing, necessitating rescue at sea and the taking of the submarine in tow, mean that it will not be sent on its desperately hazardous mission. If the Nautilus could not withstand the stress of open-sea conditions, it could not be expected to endure the strain of prolonged submersion and progress under the floes and fields, with the peril of disablement from snags of ice.

While there has been naught but admiration for the pluck of Sir Hubert Wilkins and his men who have set out on this desperately dangerous undertaking, the wisdom of the venture has been generally questioned. The chances are decidedly against success. The scientific value of the expedition is doubted. The enterprise reduces itself to a spectacular stunt, almost certain to fail, and with failure to cost the lives of a score of brave men. It is with a sense of distinct relief that the news is received that the craft is crippled in the course of the first leg of the proposed route and that the mad endeavor will probably have to be abandoned. Such a failure does not reflect in the least upon Wilkins and his men, although the project itself does reflect upon their judgment.—Washington Star.

WHEN GOOD CROPS ARE BAD.

It is one of the gruesome ironies of our modern economic system that the bumper crops predicted for this year must be interpreted as a misfortune. Good crops are bad, and bad crops are good. Such is the inexorable law of supply and demand. Respecting wheat and many other crops, it is mostly supply, and demand trails far behind.

Winter wheat, now ready to be harvested, is expected to exceed recent years' crops by 100,000,000 bushels. This means a surplus over domestic needs of 200,000,000 bushels, which will double the nation's present holdings of excess grain. Coming on the heels of the farm board's disastrous efforts to maintain wheat prices, the bumper crops of 1931 is likely to be a death-blow to the administration's regulation of agriculture.

This complex of circumstances points to one unavoidable conclusion. Either the country frankly must accept a regime of regulation, telling farmers how much they may raise of certain crops and fixing the prices to be paid for them, or else it must leave the farmers to their fate and own up to its failure to provide a remedy for agriculture.

Any attempt to steer a middle course between these alternatives will mean only a continuation of the recent policy of wasting taxpayers' money without getting any results. The administration owes it to the people to make a clear choice and then adhere to it.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Cause and Effect.

The experience of the amateur backyard farmer is that the hard work he puts into a garden isn't sufficiently remunerated by the sore back he gets out of it.—Washington Star.

Checking Tuberculosis.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

One of the most common and widespread of all diseases is tuberculosis. This disease at one time accounted for more deaths than any other plague known to mankind.

Following Koch's discovery of the tuberculosis germ in 1882, great strides were made towards control of disease. While it continues to be too prevalent, it does not create the terror and fear it formerly did.

This change has been brought about by a more thorough understanding of the disease. It is now possible to cure many cases of tuberculosis. Where cure is not possible, life has been materially prolonged and made more tolerable.

It has been said that the only persons who know how to live are those with tuberculosis. This is true to a certain degree. In the modern conception of this disease, ideal surroundings and healthful manner of living are made imperative. The patients are taught that simple hygienic living is necessary for a cure. In following this cure, they learn how health-promoting and enjoyable such living can be.

Though the disease may be found among the rich, it is more prevalent among the poor. The prevention of the disease thus becomes a social problem as well as a medical one.

Poverty, poor food, tenement homes, overwork, and worry are productive of physical conditions favorable to infection. With the increase of wages, improvement in food and housing facilities, this disease has decreased in its occurrence among the poor.

The state has accomplished a great deal in preventing this disease. Abolition of the old-time "sweat shops," the passage of child labor laws, care of the expectant mother, shorter working hours and increases in the number of playgrounds and parks, have contributed greatly in preventing and combating tuberculosis.

Insistence upon hygienic measures has greatly improved conditions in cities and industrial centers. Many dangers of modern living still exist. These must be corrected if it is hoped to completely prevent this disease. That is our earnest desire and confident hope.

The Word of God.

Be ye therefore perfect even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect.—Matthew 5:48.

Father of Chemistry.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

A really notable figure in the history of science is Robert Boyle. He is universally known, of course, because of his formulation of the famous law of gases, known as Boyle's law. But this single discovery, for which he is principally known, is in no sense a measure of his eminence as a scientist. Indeed, he has been called the father of chemistry and the first true exponent of the Baconian method. He is remembered also as the coiner of the expressive phrase, "Chemical analysis." He did much, personally, to forward that branch of the new science of which he was godfather.

Robert Boyle, seventh son of Richard Boyle, Earl of Cork, was born at Lismore in Ulster, Ireland, on January 25 1627. After a somewhat ineffective early training he was sent with his brother to study at Eton. He soon exhibited traits of a high order of scholarship. After leaving Eton, he studied for several years under a private tutor. He was very devout, and made a deep study of the Scriptures. His mind was greatly enriched and strengthened by a foreign tour, during which he studied for a short time at the University of Leyden, and later visited France and Switzerland, settling for a time at Geneva.

Upon his return home in 1644 he devoted himself to the management of his estates, and also to scientific and philosophic pursuits. He organized a philosophical society or "invisible college," as the members called themselves. The membership of this society included some of the most eminent scientific and philosophic figures of the day. For a time they met in London; but after 1654, when Boyle settled in Oxford, they met both at Oxford and in London. After the return to power of Charles II, a dilettante stundent of science, the "invisible college" was incorporated by royal charter into the famous Royal society. Boyle refused all honors, including a peerage, the office of provost of Eton, and the presidency of the Royal society. He preferred to devote his life exclusively to scientific research and religious study and meditation. His writings show a delightful vein of benignant satire, and his portrait reveals a beautiful, refined and sensitive face.

Boyle made many experiments of importance regarding the pressure of the atmosphere. He had for assistance the skilled technician and excellent scientist, Robert Hooke. Many of his experiments seem very elementary to modern students of physics; and the apparatus he employed lacked the extreme refinement of modern invention. But this simplicity, the accuracy of the observations, and the care with which the experiments were conducted furnished the very object lessons then so imperatively needed for enforcing the necessity of painstaking investigation and accurate measurement.

In England, the fundamental law which Boyle discovered is universally known as Boyle's law. Not so in France, where it is called Mariotte's law, after the French scientist who discovered it independently, fourteen years after Boyle's famous and fully recorded experiment. Mariotte discovered, as he put it, the law "that air condenses in proportion to the weight by which it is loaded." It is a singular fact that Mariotte was ignorant of Boyle's experiment; yet such was undoubtedly the case.

Boyle made many scientific experiments, which showed the range of his mind and the extent of his investigations. He demonstrated, for example, that heat is a mode of motion, although his apparatus was imperfect. He specifically states, as the result of his experiments, that heat is motion, namely of the small particles which constitute bodies. He also showed that magnetic forces can act through a vacuum and demonstrated the same regarding electrical attraction.

Boyle was a man of deep religious instincts and of profound piety. He was for a time president of the charitable organization which eventually developed into the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel. Boyle died on December 30, 1691.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

Gunfire Changes Sentiment.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

The guns which the South fired upon Fort Sumter in Charleston harbor blew Ohio completely out of the course which had been set by the Republican administration and legislature to land the state squarely in the movement for maintaining slavery in the states where it existed as a permanent institution. A resolution that had been pushed through congress mainly by Thomas Corwin, and which provided that no amendment or other change in the powers of government should be permitted whereby the national authorities should be able to interfere with slavery within its present limits, had been submitted to the states.

That amendment was before the Ohio legislature and the Republican majority had decided to give it solid support in the interest of conciliation. But before it reached its place on the calendar, the bombardment had taken place and President Lincoln's call for troops had placed a new aspect on things.

Governor Dennison had showed himself to favor the largest degree of conciliation by declaring in his inaugural address his favorable attitude toward our "faithful obedience" to what he regarded as "our constitutional obligations toward the slave-holding states."

The late Richard A. Harrison, then a member of the senate and Republican leader there, who was later to succeed Tom Corwin as a member of congress, had introduced a bill to prevent by heavy penalties the organization of, or the giving of aid to such parties as John Brown's, and it had come within three votes of passage.

But with this overt act of warfare on the part of the South, conciliation measures were no longer in favor in the legislature. Eight senators broke away from the caucus decision and voted against the amendment, among them James A. Garfield, then a young man serving his first term in the legislature.

That was the last to be heard in the Ohio legislature about conciliation. Thenceforth Ohio was to devote her entire efforts to conquest.

FIVE ANSWER ALTAR CALL AT MEETING

Dr. Joseph Owen of Iowa Preaches Sermon from John 3:7.

Five persons responded to the altar call made at the closing of preaching last night at the district Evangelical camp meeting at Garfield park. Dr. Joseph Owen of Iowa preached from the text, "Ye Must Be Born Again," found in John 3:7.

Rev. C. W. Ruhlman of Circleville led the opening prayer and a mixed quartet from the Oakland Evangelical church sang. Dr. Owen said in his sermon last night:

"The great messages of Jesus were spoken in the presence of a great need rather than in the presence of a great crowd. This message was addressed to a lone man, Nicodemus. The new birth is necessary to spiritual life. It is a universal necessity regardless of our education, culture, training, morals or social standing. Nicodemus was educated, trained, cultured, religious and a teacher of the Mosaic law, yet Jesus said to him 'Ye must be born again.' It is a mysterious experience revealed to us by the Holy Spirit. It is given by surrendering to and believing on Christ. It is an experience which is positive and which all may have and know assuredly."

This afternoon Rev. Ernest Braden, student at the Evangelical Theological seminary at Naperville, Ill., preached. The men's chorus of First United Brethren church will sing at the services tonight at 7:30.

Hemorrhoid Sufferers

End Your Piles Without Salves or Cutting

Your itching, bleeding, protruding piles will go when you actually remove the cause—bad blood circulation in the weak, flabby parts—and not one minute before. Salves or cutting can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. HEMROID, prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts. HEMROID has such a wonderful record right in this City, that Heaney & Cooper says one bottle of HEMROID Tablets must end your pile agony or money back.—Adv.

of 131 South Vine St., a lifelong resident of Marion Co., and has lived in Marion for the past 54 years, was a Salesman for a number of years, and the last two years on the road, was Blackman for the International Harvester Co. 1917 went in the Electrical business on East Center St., and was in that business until the spring of 1927. Since that time I haven't been engaged in business. Until last Friday my Republican friends talked me into filing for Mayor I told my friends if I could be Mayor of Marion and not be called a mere figure head I would go in the race with my three brother Elks with a good chance to win at the August primary. So here I am in the race and if my Republican friends nominate me at the August primary I will make a vigorous effort to win in November, and if elected I pledge myself to every voter and taxpayer in Marion, Ohio, there won't be one cent paid to a Safety director while I am in office.

I might have to appoint one in the office of the Service director. If this be the case he won't get any pay for the appointment of Safety director, I will also recommend a 10% cut on every City pay check where the Salary is more than one hundred and twenty-five dollars a month until such a time that business conditions would warrant more Salaries.

And if elected I promise you Rigid Economy, Law and Order Enforcement.

Your vote at the primary will be greatly appreciated.

us. These men also had handkerchiefs tied over their faces. It was very dark in the church and I couldn't see them distinctly.

Stripped by Captors

"Two of them grabbed me and stripped off all my clothes. Though it was a warm night, I shivered some. The four men didn't talk One produced a new rope.

"Have you any dying request to make?" one asked. It was the first thing any of them had said in the church—my first intimated that they intended to kill me."

Brown said he heard an automobile pass outside and made a gesture of escape only to have one of the raptors kick him and another slap him across the face.

They then looped the rope around his neck and carried the nude preacher to his pulpit.

They tossed the rope over the ceiling and tied it to the pulpit.

Brown was hoisted two feet into the air. Another captor brought a chair and placed it below the preacher, just a fraction of an inch below his toe. Brown struggled to reach it, but could not, he said and the kidnapers chuckled and departed.

Rope Stretches

Slowly choking in the darkness, Brown tried to reach the chair again a few minutes later and was surprised to find that he could. The rope had begun to stretch.

Teetering at the end of the rope, just able to support himself with his toes and keep from choking, he stood there in the darkness, suffering agonies at the thought of what might be in store for him if his strength gave way.

It was about four hours he hung there but time seemed endless as he waited, not knowing whether he would be missed.

The railroads, their prosperity essential to national welfare, should get more money, while seeking for ways and means to meet changed conditions. The fact that the railroad speed record for the United States, from Chicago to Buffalo, is almost 40 years old, indicates that there may be room for improvements.

HOOVER ON RETURN TRIP TO WHITE HOUSE

President "Appreciates" Welcome Tendered Him on Central States Tour.

By The Associated Press

ENROUTE WITH PRESIDENT HOOVER, TO WASHINGTON, June 18—President Hoover was on his way back to the White House today, "appreciative" of the welcome given him by the people of the central states.

In the last three days he has spoken as many times to vast audiences in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois and he has been the central figure in receptions at the capital cities of all three states.

In the central states President Hoover laid down his program and upon it he is determined to stand. Confidants of Mr. Hoover asserted he would stand on the issues he has defined in this region and remain henceforth in his post at the White House.

Crops in the section the President observed are unusually good and he believes the depression will be broken eventually by a good crop. Administration officials pointed out hopefully today that every depression in the last 50 years has been broken in June or July.

In his speeches, Mr. Hoover outlined what he believed to be the causes of the depression; declared this to be the "dominant" issue; asserted that confidence in the place of fear and apprehension would lead the nation to a greater era of prosperity than "ever before"; and specified some proposals he has for the future.

year, in order to give the state tax commission time to set up administrative machinery and get the stamps printed and distributed. The bill imposes penalties for evasion of the tax by dealers.

The bill also provides for reduction of the wholesale cigaret license from $200 to $100 and the retail license from $50 to $25 annually.

The senate committee's action in recommending the cigaret tax and submission of the $7,500,000 bond issue may forestall efforts to wind up the work of the session this week. It now appears as though adjournment will not come until next week.

The first of the taxation program bills sponsored by the special joint taxation committee met defeat yesterday in the house. It was the county budget bill setting up a new county budget commission to control local expenditures.

Two other bills of the tax program received house approval yesterday. They were the delinquent tax bill and the measure authorizing extra voted levies beyond the 15 mills limitation for certain purposes.

DECLINES TO PROBE UNIVERSITY AFFAIRS

Legislative Committee Votes Down Resolutions Asking Business Investigations.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., June 18—The universities committee of the house of representatives was committed today to a policy of non-interference with the business and academic affairs of Ohio State university.

The committee last night voted down three resolutions calling for legislative investigations.

It decided there is no need to inquire into the actions of the university trustees in dismissing Dr. Herbert Miller, internationally known sociologist. It also concluded that nothing is to be gained by investigating the trustees' business transactions or the question of compulsory military training for student.

Dr. Miller's case developed considerable debate after the professor had appeared personally before the committee to state his views as to why he was let out.

Dr. Miller said he could "discover no reason for the trustees' action" except the personal animosity of Julius Stone, chairman of the board."

"The real issue," he said, "is not my dismissal but a situation wherein the board of trustees transgressed its authority under the pressure of political and financial interests."

"A corps of investigators has made extensive inquiry into the records of each man, inquiring among other things whether he has ever served a prison sentence and whether he himself ever used liquor.

Must be Abstainer

"If a man at some time in his past has taken liquor and then stopped using it we do not hold this against him, but every man in the service now must be a total abstainer. He cannot properly enforce the law and drink himself

SURPRISE SPRUNG

Personal Papers Produced in Trial of Former Senator Bender.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., June 18—Cross-examination of former Senator George H. Bender was completed today in his trial on charges of embezzlement and perjury, after Prosecutor P. L. A. Lieghley introduced a "surprise" exhibit in the form of personal papers in Bender's own handwriting.

Bender admitted they were papers upon which he had copied various items in preparation of the report of the constitutional law enforcement league filed with the secretary of state. Bender is charged with unlawfully appropriating $22,750 from the league, and then filing a perjured report with the secretary of state of financial expenditures in the Marshall bill campaign in 1927.

How the papers, which Bender previously testified had been thrown away, were obtained was not revealed. Neither was it disclosed who gathered them up to save for a climatic appearance four years later.

HEADLINES HIDE MANY STORIES OF INTEREST

Review Given Here of Some Outstanding Events of History.

By International News Service.

BOSTON — Back of the headlines on newspapers, which chronicle the day's happenings to thousands of readers, lie many romantic tales in the history of journalism. Few are more interesting than the development of the methods of gathering news.

Fifty-four years ago on February 12, 1877, the telephone was first used to report a news event to a newspaper. This invention revolutionized the news gathering methods of newspapers.

With the death of Henry Morrill Batchelder, bank president, and formerly Salem correspondent for a Boston paper, the incident was recalled. Batchelder reported a meeting at Lyceum Hall, in Salem, where Alexander Graham Bell delivered a lecture on his invention of the telephone. The story was about 850 words long, and so clearly was it received, even with the crude mechanism then used, that only three words were mistaken on the Boston end of the line.

Another romantic incident in news gathering was recalled with Batchelder's death. During the great salem fire on June 25, 1914, all the telephone wires but one into Salem were wrecked. A Boston reporter got the wire connected with his paper and held it all day. Because he would have to give it up if he stopped talking, he recited passages from the Bible. The Face on the Bar Room Floor, Casey at the Bat, and every other poem he knew, and read the entire City directory, broken up frequently by new developments on the fire, which his assistants gathered and brought to him.

Recently, a syndicate announced its intentions of purchasing the plot and erecting a huge apartment project.

Police Outwit Gangsters and Foil Kidnapers

By The Associated Press

POTTSTOWN, Pa., June 18—When gangsters kidnapped Dr. J Elmer Porter, 66, president of the Security Trust company, state police went along—disguised as luggage.

Dr. Porter, who is a physician-banker, drove his automobile to an appointed place last night where he was to "treat" a patient in response to a mysterious telephone call.

State police had already obtained information from an unnamed source that the call was to be the starting point of a kidnaping and two of them concealed themselves in the rear of the doctor's car.

Arriving at the place, Edward Kitchell and Harry McKay, described as Philadelphia gangsters, climbed into the car and directed Dr. Porter to drive to a lonely part of the city. They glanced in the rear of the car but concluded the bulge was baggage and paid no heed.

The state police remained hidden until the gangsters directed Dr. Porter to stop at a place where another automobile was waiting. In it was Foster Weand, also of Philadelphia. The officers then shook off the appearance of baggage and arrested all three. Weand was said to have had letters in his possession indicating the physician was to be held for $15,000 ransom, the amount to be paid by his brother, Samuel, a druggist.

CHAPTER 16

Bruce's Entrance Cue

A [illegible] turned toward Tony [illegible] a look of studied inso- [illegible] went to the foot of the [illegible] called: "Pierre, oh, [illegible] supper's about ready."

[illegible] shouted Pierre' and [illegible] minute he ran joyously [illegible] ing room.

"Everybody," he called, "bookkeeping, Pa Bevis? [illegible] old balance balancing?" [illegible] Ann and Old Tony [illegible] Bruce turned away in [illegible] 39 cents, Pierre," said [illegible] bad—naughty little 39 [illegible] returned. Then bur- [illegible] a man of big business, he [illegible] Bruce. "Ahem! And [illegible] your opinion of the Wall [illegible] ration today, Mr. Carey?"

The three laughed. But [illegible] in a tone of disgust, [illegible] the comedy, will you? [illegible] so funny."

[illegible] bowed, burlesquing a [illegible] ter, and in the manner of [illegible] quent Shakespearian act- [illegible] "I pray thee pardon [illegible] fool, sire, an my antics [illegible] please, I'll trade cap and [illegible] for an interest table, though [illegible] to make a money juggler [illegible] a mountebank were a sorry jest."

[illegible] Ann and Tony laughed [illegible] But Bruce cried angrily, [illegible] Pete's sake lay off, will you?" [illegible] to Ann, "Come on, Ann, why [illegible] we eat?" He seated himself [illegible] table.

Ann brought dishes of food for [illegible] while Pierre, going to [illegible] Tony, said, "I'm awfully glad [illegible] came over this afternoon, Father Tony. I'm going to miss you [illegible] the devil, but I'll be thanking [illegible] for all you've been to me." He threw his arms around the old actor's shoulders.

Ann paused to gaze at them sympathetically. Martin, too, watched them with interest.

"Well," barked Bruce impatiently, "are you folks coming to supper or not?"

Ann looked at her husband and father with anger and shame. "Bruce!" she exclaimed in an undertone, "how can you be so rude?" She turned and said heartily, "Come, Father Tony, you'll have supper with us, of course."

Pierre echoed the invitation gaily. The old actor hesitated wistfully, but Bruce and Martin were inhospitable and he said, "I'm sorry, Ann I'd like to, but I'd better not stay this evening." To Pierre he added anxiously: "You are really going in the morning, Pierre?"

Pierre patted him on the back reassuringly, "Sure as the sunrise, Father Tony."

Ann gave him his hat and Pierre went with him into the hall. The actor turned and with fine dignity said: "Good evening, Ann, good evening, Bruce, Martin."

Bruce and Martin returned gruffly: "Goodbye."

Pierre, gaily taking his seat at the table, looked questioningly from the painfully silent Ann to Bruce and Martin. It was very evident that the harmony of the little family was strained. But Pierre's spirits were too high to be subdued and, partially for that reason, partially from sympathy for Ann, he exerted himself to relieve the tension.

"Aha!" he cried melodramatically, "Hot biscuits, as I live! By all the gods I swear, there's no skill like thine to conjure up such cookery. How shall I, in New York, live without my Lady Ann's hot biscuits?"

Bruce groaned, but Ann and Martin laughed.

"Better change your mind about being an actor," said Martin. "Tendin' soda fountain ain't such a high-minded job, but soda jerks eat regular, which is more than most actors do."

"Soda jerk!" cried Pierre. "Spare me, good sir, 'tis a part I do not crave to play." More seriously he continued: "But the role has advantages, friends. My time at the soda fountain has not been wasted. An actor, you know, must play many parts."

Pierre rose and in the manner of a showman announced: "With your kind permission, I will present the master artist of the soft drink fraternity."

Throwing his napkin over his arm with a magnificent gesture he approached Ann. Then bending over and offering an imaginary menu, he murmured: "Does madam desire to order something, please?"

"I'll have a malted milk chocolate, with egg," laughed Ann.

With another bow, the waiter said, "Yes, madam. I thank you, madam," and going to an imaginary soda fountain he proceeded with a flourish to mix the imaginary drink which he then, with an elegant gesture, placed before the lady. Then turning to Bruce and Martin, with a bow, he asked: "And what would the gentlemen like, please? I have sweets for the sweet, and nuts for the nuts."

"Aw, cut it out!" shouted Bruce. "You act like a darned half-wit."

"Yes, sir, thank you, sir," returned the bowing waiter. "And now, if you please, observe the wretched amateur."

By this time Ann and Martin were heartily enjoying the exhibition, and even Bruce was becoming interested. Following the applause, in which Bruce joined in a half-hearted way, Pierre presented various well-known characters as they patronized the soda fountain.

When the various characterizations were finished, the audience of three applauded vigorously and Pierre bowed his thanks.

As they rose from the table, Bruce said heartily: "I've got to hand it to you, kid, when it comes to acting." Then, as he went into his bedroom, he added: "Don't go away. I want to see you."

Pierre and Ann were alone. Ann stood gazing at the young man with more adoration than she realized. "Oh, Pierre," she said slowly, "must you go to that school to study acting? Why don't you go on the stage now? I have never seen an actor who could compare with you."

Pierre laughed boyishly, pleased with the compliment, but remembering that Ann knew nothing of the art of acting.

"I have a long way to go before I can attempt a part in a real play," he returned seriously. "I know I have something, because Father Tony says so, and because mother used to say that some day I would be a real artist—but mothers are that way."

"But, Pierre, surely Father Tony knows—he was an actor himself. And Father Tony says your mother was the most wonderful actress he ever saw."

Pierre continued: "When I played kiddie parts on the stage, mother used to say that the most important thing is the actor's exit. A lot of people hold that an actor's entrance is all important, just as some folks are always bragging about their families and all that. But it's the actor's exit lines—the way he leaves the stage that establishes the character.

"Take Jesus, for example," he continued reverently. "Jesus didn't make much of an entrance—born in a manger, in an old cow shed! But look at His exit. It impressed His divine character upon the whole world for all time and eternity."

With agonized face uplifted and arms extended as on a cross, Pierre acted the crucifixion, while Ann, under the spell of his acting, unconsciously assumed the attitude of a worshiper.

Then Pierre said: "Just before mother died she talked about her 'exit' and made me feel that death was no more than stepping off stage into the wings after playing your bit. And she said that when she had made her exit she would be standing in the wings. That's why I've got to go to school and make myself the kind of actor mother wants me to. That's why I can't give up my school money to Bruce or to any one else—not if I knew it would bring me millions. You do understand, don't you, Ann?"

Ann impulsively moved closed to him and, putting her hands on his shoulders, said: "I do understand, Pierre dear! Of course you must be true to yourself, my Pierre. No matter what Bruce or my father says you must not think of letting Bruce have a penny of your school money for his gold mining scheme. You won't will you, dear?—it would be wicked."

Neither Pierre nor Ann noticed that Bruce was standing in the doorway to his room watching them and listening to her words.

To Be Continued.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

—BY JUDD M. LEWIS—

TOMORROW would be Friday in school, and there would be speaking of pieces, and April Blossom would be speaking a piece if we were there. Whitey says April is offal easy on the eyes, but I think that is because her folks are rich and she is always all dressed up. I told him so, and he wanted to know what I had against her, and I could of got a fight out of him if I had wanted to. But I fit with him once, and he is so good that I didn't quite know which one got licked, but I was glad he thought he did. I told him she was all right but she liked to speak pieces, and when he wanted to know what that had to do with it I told him that whoever married her would find out.

I said that when her husband wanted her to get up and get breakfast she would wait till she spoke a piece, and then she would speak another after breakfast, and she would be speaking The Boy Stood on the Burning Deck whilst he was eating dinner, and when he went to sleep at night she would be standing up in bed and saying Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight.

He got sore and went and got my mother's clothes pole and went over to the acting pole by himself and put it up as high as it would go and tried to pole vault over it, but my mother's clothes pole broke while he was up in the air and he fell acrosst the acting pole on his stummick and fell off almost on top of Jubilee. I told him it was a good thing he didn't fall on my dog, and he stuck out his chin and acted me who it was a good thing for, and I told him it was a good thing for Jubilee, then everyone gave him the laugh. Then we started to go out to Rocky River, and when we were jumping acrosst a ditch with a lot of grass and water in it I saw a big snapping turkle in the ditch, and I slid down and got it by the tail and brung it up, and I got a stick and stuck the middle of it in its mouth and when it snapped down on it me and Peanuts took hold of the ends of the stick and carried the turkle between us.

I was going to take it home and fatten it up and sell it to a restaurant to make soup of, but Mike said it was all of our turkle, and he wanted to build a fire on his back and see how fast it could run, but I told him if he did I would build a fire on his back and make him catch it, but just then [illegible] saw a snake and he caught [illegible] took the turkle on the [illegible] [illegible] it let go of [illegible] started to go away [illegible] it fell off across [illegible] [illegible] the snake [illegible] [illegible] on it the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Takes Up the Task of Completing Her Drama

THERE was but one person in the living room who showed any reluctance in obeying Katie's imperative call to dinner. The lure of the "bottle feeshes climbing out of the pan waiting to be swallowed," so appealed to the hunger of the fishing party, and indeed to the rest of us, that there was a quick exodus into the dining room. Only Bill, not yet "Seventeen," but giving a realistic imitation of the role, was blissfully unconscious of Katie's ire at having the phonograph started just as she was ringing her second dinner gong, and with his arms in exactly the correct posture about Marion, but with eyes looking unutterable adoration into hers, he gave no sign of having heard any summons, until she, tactful and resourceful, pretended to stumble, and caught at his arm. I was so near them that I caught all of the little colloquy.

"Did you hurt yourself?" Bill asked so anxiously that, sympathize though I might with his roseate young dream, I had hard work to choke back a laugh. It was the agonized tone which one would use to a beloved old mother who had just fallen down a flight of stairs.

"No, it's only this hockey ankle of mine," Marion replied with I knew just enough truth back of her words to save her from flagrant subterfuge. "I twisted it pretty badly last year, and the darned thing goes back on me every now and then."

"You must sit down at once," he said masterfully, then as the possible consequences of the thing dawned on him, he gasped—"Won't you be able to dance any more this evening?"

Vallata Treacherman

"Of course I will, Stupid." Her eyes made the appellation a sort of accolade, and Bill sniffed the air as might a warhorse. "It will be all right after a rest, and we really ought to eat dinner now, don't you think? Aren't you hungry?"

"Am I?" Relieved at one stroke of two great anxieties, he became all normal boy once more, and escorting Marion into the dining room with the care of one tending an invalid on crutches, he proved himself almost as "valiant a treacherman" as his brother Hank who easily would have carried off any prize offered for the largest number of fish eaten during the meal.

I found, however, when I had [illegible] myself in my place at the [illegible] table, that I was too [illegible] to eat. I sat and watched [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Earnshaw Sets Dizzy Pace on Hill So What Can Tribe Do

MORGAN CRACKS OUT HOMER BUT INDIANS LOSE TO MACKMEN

Washington Scores in Ninth To Break Tie and Beat St. Louis Browns 8-7.

BY GAYLE TALBOT, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

George Earnshaw, hero of the last world series, was expected to be a great help to the Philadelphia Athletics in their quest of a third straight championship, but it is doubtful that even Connie Mack looked for his big righthander to set the sizzling pace he has for the first two months of the race.

EARNSHAW

In turning back the Cleveland Indians, 4 to 2, yesterday, Earnshaw recorded his eleventh consecutive victory as against two defeats.

At his present clip, Earnshaw will set a far better record than last season, when he won 22 and lost 13. Cleveland could solve Earnshaw for only five hits yesterday, one of them a homer by Eddie Morgan.

Washington completed its rout of the western invaders by scoring once in the ninth to nose out the St. Louis Browns, 8 to 7. Ossie Bluege's triple drove Dave Harris across with the winner after the Browns had scored two runs in their half to tie it up.

Rain washed away the only other bouts scheduled in the American league, a doubleheader between the Yankees and Red Sox at Boston.

In the day's only National league contest, the Brooklyn Robins wound up their western invasion with a 2 to 0 triumph over Pittsburgh. Watson Clark held the Pirates to seven hits to score his second straight shutout.

ANOTHER BEATING

Epworth No. 1 Defeated by Forest Lawn 6-4 at Garfield Park.

The Epworth No. 1 recreation baseball team stepped out of No. 1 Sunday school league competition yesterday into the No 2 lead and took a 6 to 4 beating from Forest Lawn Presbyterians at Garfield park. The Epworth team has yet to win a game this season.

"Jim" O'Dowd, Forest Lawn manager, started his second string pitcher, Freddie Vestal, against the Methodist and finished the game with his third stringer, Red Peadon, in the box. Stanley McCombs banged out a homer for Forest Lawn with one man on base.

Batteries and score by innings:
Forest Lawn ..... 012 030 0 – 6
Epworth No. 1. ..... 001 201 0 – 4

Forest Lawn, Vestal, R. Peadon and G. Peadon; Epworth No. 1, Gamble and Wilson.

TAKES 23 INNINGS BUT CHRISTIANS ARE FINALLY VICTORS 3-2

Reformed Donates Game by Temporary "Blow-Up" in Third; Hits Homer

AFTER battling through three games for a total of 23 innings the Christian No. 1 recreation baseball team has finally gained a 3-2 victory over the First Reformed church team. The Christians won the third start yesterday although it was entirely through the big heartedness of the First Reformed nine. The big heartedness of Reformed was entirely the result of errors on the part of the fielders but regardless of the cause the Christians were given all of their runs through this manner.

Roscoe Rank and Dale Schwaderer occupied the mound for the opposing teams yesterday and both of them turned in sterling exhibitions. Rank, the winning pitcher, gave up three hits and Schwaderer was nicked for one more. Reformed garnered a homer, double and single for its quota off Rank while all of the Christian hits were singles.

Third Inning Panic

When two teams score a total of five runs and one of them is of the earned variety one can be reasonably sure there were a lot of errors mixed in the game at one place or another. The game yesterday was no exception.

Both teams went scoreless in the first two innings and then the Christians came to bat in the third. W. Jerew reached first on an error by Howison and was advanced to second when Ward's hit was fumbled around in the infield, Ward also being safe at first. Johnnie Gillis and Johnnie Rife temporarily delayed the scoring process by failing to hit. Harold Geissler then came to bat and banged out a fairly hard hit ball to shortstop that should have been an easy third out but which was anything but an out.

It Looked Awful

Sawyer allowed the ball to get by him at short and the panic was on. Howison came in to field the ball and he let it roll through his legs. Finally retrieving it in plenty of time to cut off at least one of the three runs he threw to the infield where the ball struck the foot of Schwaderer and careened off the third base line, allowing all three runners to cross the plate. Three runs, no hits and three errors. And the ball game was won for the Christians.

LeRoy Klingel put Reformed back into the running in the sixth inning by crashing a homer over the left fielder's head to score himself and Burklew who had gotten on base through a previous error. After Klingel's four-base clout Reformed battled hard but couldn't connect with any of Rank's slants with any degree of effectiveness.

First Reformed ..... 000 002 0—2

ASSOCIATION PILOTS SEEK NEW PLAYERS TO BOLSTER LINEUPS

Managers Figure Race Is Wide Open for Any Team This Year.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 18—American association baseball club managers are doing a lot of looking around for talent to strengthen their lineups, most of them figuring that the race is so wide open that any team may pop up in front.

Louisville yesterday obtained the services of outfielder Gene Moore from Cincinnati, but will not use him until Manager Allen Sothoron decides what other player may best be spared.

Kansas City grabbed a pair of infielders in an effort to find a workable combination. Ollie Marquardt, a second baseman, was obtained from the Boston Red Sox, and shortstop Bill Akers was taken on when Detroit let him go.

Only one scheduled game was played yesterday, but it provides enough baseball to make up for any lack. Kansas City went 10 innings to defeat Columbus, 19 to 17, after blowing an 8 to 0 lead accumulated in the first three rounds.

Toledo took a 7 to 4 beating from the New York Giants in an exhibition game. Bill Rabb worked for the Mud Hens and was slammed for 18 hits.

PLANS LAKE TRIP

Jack Conarty To Take 50 Marion Boys on Summer Outing.

Approximately 50 Marion youths will be provided an opportunity of spending a couple of weeks somewhere along the shores of Lake Erie wrestling, swimming, boxing and participating in similar sports if plans announced yesterday by Jack Conarty of 638 east Church street materialize. Conarty is now at work recruiting a group of boys for such a trip. The exact place of the outing is not definitely known, Conarty says, but will probably be in the vicinity of Rye Beach.

Conarty, a former boxer, will instruct the boys in the various sports during the period at the lake and will continue the training after the return home. He hopes to be able to promote a local amateur boxing tournament sometime in September if interest among the boys warrants it.

The Scioto course is well trapped and exceedingly hazardous. Its wind-swept fairways are expected to bring out a lot of jeers for the newly adopted "balloon" ball, according to how the sphere performs for the players.

HARVARD FAVORITE

Yale Underdog in Shell Race on Thames Friday Night.

By The Associated Press

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 18—Harvard power is expected to prevail over Yale skill tomorrow night when the varsity eights race on the Thames river.

Harvard will go to its stake boat as the only undefeated varsity in the country, chiefly because of Navy's unexpected victory at Poughkeepsie and the storm that washed out Harvard's quadrangular brush with Cornell, Syracuse and M. I. T. last month at Ithaca.

Coach Charlie Whiteside's crew may, or may not be worthy of this distinction, but the claim that it is the best Harvard eight that ever trained to race a leader-coached Yale crew cannot be questioned.

To date the Harvard varsity has come through two short race regattas undefeated and has beaten Navy, Pennsylvania, Princeton and Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Yale has trailed Columbia and Cornell and its preliminary season was the most unsuccessful one in years.

GETS INVITATION

Mayor Jones Asked to Participate in Fiesta.

An engraved invitation requesting his presence at the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the city of Los Angeles, Calif., has been received by Mayor L. Don Jones from John C. Porter, mayor of that city.

The celebration which is designated as the La Fiesta will be held on Sept. 4 and is in charge of the La Fiesta association of which Isidore B. Dockweiler is president.

The mayor said this morning he would be unable to attend and suggested that if any from this city had planned to be in Los Angeles on that date, he would appoint them his official representative securing for them courtesies which they would perhaps not otherwise receive.

The mayor also received an invitation from the American Olympic association of Detroit to serve as honorary city chairman of the association for the city of Marion for 1932.

The Olympic games will be held in Lake Placid, N. Y. next year from Feb. 4 to 13 and in Los Angeles, Calif., from July 30 to August 14.

Said City also hereby pledges itself to levy assessments to pay the property owners' part of the cost of the improvements in anticipation of which these notes are issued, and to issue bonds in anticipation of the collection of such assessments. The proceeds of the sale of said bonds and any excess funds above the actual cost resulting from the issuance of such notes are hereby pledged for the retirement of the notes at maturity. The assessments collected for the improvements shall be applied, respectively, to the payment of the notes and interest thereon until both are fully paid and thereafter such assessments shall be applied to the payment, respectively, of the bonds to be issued, and the interest thereon. In the event that assessments are not levied or bonds issued to provide a fund for the payment of the notes at maturity, a general tax shall be levied on all taxable property of said City sufficient to pay said notes and the interest thereon.

LAVENDER Remedy "Stops all Stomach and Bowel trouble" 75c Made by Kennedy's Pharmacy

Marion, Ohio,
May 23, 1931

Mr. Clifton Lower,
Lower's Pharmacy,
W. Center and Leader Sts.
Dear Mr. Lower:
I greatly appreciate this opportunity of saying a few words regarding the benefit I have derived from taking Diamond Blood Capsules, purchased at your drugstore I am 20 years old and reside at 767 Bennett st, this city. I was born in Marion. I have a large number of friends and acquaintances that know me, especially at the Commercial Steel Casting Co They remember me as being troubled with anemia with an unsightly skin disturbance, the result of bad blood conditions. Prior to taking Diamond Blood Capsules I spent $500 to $600 with serum treatments, etc., without any special benefit During the last two years my condition was such that I was frequently unable to work for many days at a time. Cliff Walters of Leader st., a friend, directed my attention to Diamond Blood Capsules Three months ago, I purchased my first bottle of capsules at your store. In all to date I have taken three large bottles. Believe it or not, my skin is clearing up My strength is better than at any other time in my life. My blood is back to normal. You have my full permission to use this letter publicly in order that others now suffering may be able to regain their health
Respectfully,
Willard Larcom.
The above letter is an example of the reception accorded our Diamond Blood Building Capsules.
Concentrated liver with all its properties for producing rich new blood combined with cleansing agencies to drive poison and impurities from your system and cleanse your blood and you have the story of Diamond Blood Building capsules
For them, we do not claim they are a "cure-all," but we do claim that regardles of the nature of your ailment, if you are in a weakened condition of any sort or failing in any way, you will not make a mistake in taking Diamond Blood Building capsules

The Stars Say—

For Friday, June 19

A FAIRLY active and progressive day is forecast from the ruling sidereal influences. In business, personal affairs and important enterprises there is promise of much stimulus and aggressive attack. Writings and private influences may bring advantages despite some minor disappointment or thwarted wish.
Those whose birthday it is are assured a fairly successful year, with the energies and faculties well stimulated to initiative and bold progress. There may be some minor setbacks or postponements of anxieties in employment. Personal affairs may also be active and gratifying, with readjustments happily, on business. A child born on this day should be active and aggressive as well as personally gracious and popular. It should do well in almost any artistic or literary education.

SUSPENDS SENTENCE

Man Must Pay Hospital Bill of Assault Victim.

Earnest Austin of Mt Vernon arrested at the Fairground several weeks ago following an attack on Bob Lee of North Randall, who has been held at the county jail pending the outcome of Lee's injuries, was given a sentence of six months in the work house by Municipal Judge W. R. Mayer this morning. The sentence was then suspended on condition that Austin pay Lee's hospital bill and the costs in the case. Lee was taken to the hospital suffering with a broken jaw and other injuries administered by Austin when he refused to go for liquor he is said to have taken from the Mt. Vernon man.

RAIN REPORTS CAUSE SLUMP

Wheat Prices Decline as Drouth Is Broken in World's Crop Areas.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 18—Reports of heavy rains in big sections of the Canadian drouth region led to lower prices for wheat early today. Favorable weather for crops in France, replacing prolonged adverse conditions, was also noted. Opening ⅛@¾ cents lower, wheat afterward held near the initial limits. Corn started ⅛ off to ⅜ up and subsequently showed firmness.

Advices that Russia had chartered vessels for 100,000 tons of grains acted as a weight on the wheat market. Bears made much also of summaries indicating that crop conditions in domestic spring wheat states, except the western third of North Dakota and the eastern third of Montana had benefitted by recent rains and seasonable temperature. Special attention was likewise given to definite announcements that the federal farm board would not pledge itself to withhold stabilization wheat from domestic markets for another year.

One trade authority laid particular stress on assertions that the wheat market was burned by the fact that 200,000,000 bushels of wheat in the United States was held in the hands of one agency under what might be termed a unified control He added it was obvious from the action of markets abroad that European importers had no intention of readjusting prices upward in the face of this big holding. However, a fair amount of overnight export business in the United States old crop winter wheat was indicated Absence of selling pressure strengthened corn. Oats were responsive to increased movement of the new crop Provisions went higher with hog values.

Judge Fines Brother for Traffic Violation

By International News Service.

VAN NUYS, Calif.—The age-old law of brotherly love has no place in Judge Clifford Thompson's court. The judge's brother, Dr. R. L. Thompson was cited into court for speeding. The traffic tag also said the doctor's car was without a tail light.

Ordinarily Judge Thompson suspended tail light tags.

"Five dollars for speeding and $2 for the absence of tail light," the judge ordered.

"And now doctor, the last time I was ill do you remember what you prescribed for me?" Judge Thompson asked

"Sure I do. I made you take a dose of castor oil." Dr. Thompson declared.

"Yes, I can taste it yet," the judge grimaced. "Next case."

Producing Less Found Profitable for Growers

DENVER — Produce less and make more money, is the plan Robert and Jess Fulkerson of Granby, Colo., lettuce raisers, have found most successful. In the summer they produce lettuce on their high-altitude farm near Granby. In the winter they raise lettuce in southern Arizona. By limiting their crop to a small acreage they find that they can produce a higher quality of lettuce which brings them a premium in the market. They report they have realized as high as $400 an acre for their crop.

Hoover Dam Builders Brave Danger To Do Their Work in Black Canyon

By The Associated Press

LAS VEGAS, Nevada—Hand over hand 50 feet down a rope dangling over the precipice that faces Black canyon- that's all in a day's work for the men engaged in the preliminary work of building Hoover dam

It's the way they go to work and it's the way they go home from work, for the point where they are engaged is the middle of the cliff, some 60 to 70 feet above the murky flow of the Colorado river.

They are drilling and blasting out a niche where will be anchored one end of a large cable tramway reaching across the big stream.

Eleven Cable Trains

A total of about 1 of these cables will be installed between the bluff walls of Black canyon to furnish fast transportation from one side of the river to the other. The first is being cut less than a mile upstream from the actual dam site.

A rope more than 100 feet long hangs from the cliff above. To get to the scene of their labors the jackhammer men must cross the river by boat, climb up the cliff, then lower themselves over the precipice 50 feet down the sheer rock walls

At night they go down the rope to a waiting boat

A compressed air feed pipe line was stretched across the river from the more accessible rim on the Nevada side, where large compressors are run

First a cable was strung across the 300-foot chasm, then the two-inch compressor air pipe was pushed across, section by section, by men hanging precariously to a slim cable suspended below the main cable on wire loops.

Power thus reaches the jackhammers as holes are drilled in the "Eagle's Nest" spot where the stout anchor for the tram cable will be imbedded

At another point some 50 feet above the water level, jackhammer men are working in a man made groove about 200 feet long, chipping their way along the face of the cliff, cutting out a right of way for the railroad trains which will carry debris from the dam site

At this outpost of the project the crew works in shifts continuously —day and night At still another sector, road crews are fighting their way along the rock walls, digging out a highway to connect Boulder City and the dam site.

Between the floor of the niche and the ceiling a heavy bar is clamped in a vertical position. On this there are two arm shaped bars, sturdily built, which support the heavy jackhammers.

When the holes are completed, powder is placed and the explosion which follows rips out huge sections of rock. All equipment must be carried out prior to the blast and then moved back afterward.

In few instances in railroad construction have there been so many perils and difficulties to be overcome.

X-Ray Expert Gives One Hand to Science

By International News Service

VIENNA—Professor Dr. Guido Holzknecht, well-known physician and X-ray expert, has had to undergo an amputation of his right hand He has sacrificed it to his profession, since the operation was made necessary by dangerous X-ray burns which threatened his life

Professor Holzknecht watched the amputation with the greatest calm. He has ordered the construction of a special artificial hand which is to enable him to continue his scientific work.

Other famous victims of the dangerous X-ray and radium experiments were Reginald Blackall, English scientist, who was operated upon 15 times and got the prize of the Carnegie Fund for Heroes, and M. Demnitroux, the French scientist, who was an assistant of M. and Mme. Curie, the radium discoverers.

Beauty Expert Suggests Honey Facial for Complexion Tonic

BY JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON

HONEY facials have been an accepted part of beauty culture for many long years but, because they came down through the ages modern beauty culture ignored them for some time Several years ago we brought them forth again and today they rank high among the really beneficial facials given to women in reliable shops

The honey pack we are going to discuss today is excellent for drawing impurities out of the pores for refreshing the skin so that it sparkles with life, and, in addition to this, it will nourish loose flabby skin and muscles so that lines are smoothed out and a general refining and lifting of the skin and muscles result. What more can you hope to find from one type of treatment?

Pure strained honey should be used and it is the same variety that is used for cooking

The skin should be cleansed with cream and after its removal with cleansing tissues or a soft cloth, hot compresses should be applied Just wring a folded cloth out in water as hot as you can stand it Twelve or fifteen of these hot compresses should be applied, a fresh hot one being substituted as soon as the one in use begins to cool.

Following the hot compresses a good nourishing cream should be massaged into the skin. It is not necessary to use the deep-kneading and pinching massage movements for this treatment, but special attention other than gently smoothing the cream over the skin in an upward and outward direction should be given to the area around the eyes and mouth.

Direction of Massage

Here the old favorite of encircling each eye fifty times should be followed. Placing the tip of the third finger on the upper lid near the bridge of the nose, draw it lightly out to the end of the eye and then bring it back to the nose under the eye This movement works against the direction of the lines under the eyes and helps to set the tissues and muscles back in their normal position for the time being Repeated daily, this action gives the same results that proper exercises accomplish in hardening and adjusting muscles of the abdomen when they have become relaxed and so fallen.

For treating the mouth, place the tips of the fingers at the corners of the mouth and then work them up toward the wings of the nose by sweeping them briskly across the line which usually runs from the nostrils to the corners of the mouth Sweep the fingers out across the line lift them from the face and bring them back to the original position, thus you avoid working back over the line which would be contrary to proper massage movements.

Remove some of the cream at the end of the massage but not all of it for a little of the nourishing cream left on the skin serves as an excellent base for the honey, which is applied directly after the massage

Smooth a liberal amount of honey over the entire face and throat and then pat the skin lightly for fifteen or twenty minutes Being sticky the honey pulls the skin up a little with each pat, giving splendid stimulation to the muscles and tissues.

Remove the honey with warm towels gradually cooling their temperature until a really cold one is used Finish off the treatment with the ice massage, pat the face dry and then apply a mild skin tonic

When this dries you may apply your make-up if taken just before retiring, the skin should be left free until morning

May be taken daily for a couple of weeks, then twice each week until the skin has reached the condition you desire

"Moon's Increase" Time To Oil Roads, He Says

By International News Service

HARRISBURG, Pa.—Application of an old Pennsylvania German custom to highway maintenance work has been suggested to State Secretary of Highways Samuel Lewis

In a letter, a correspondent commended him for starting oiling crews to work on macadam roads during the "increase of the moon." With such a start, the correspondent claimed, virtually no oil would be lost due to pick-up by passing cars.

During the "decrease of the moon," the letter warned, at least half the oil would be picked-up.

The highway department laboratory has been asked to check the claim.

Mr Clifton Lower,
Lower's Pharmacy,
W. Center and Leader Sts.
Dear Mr. Lower:
I greatly appreciate this opportunity of saying a few words regarding the benefit I have derived from taking Diamond Blood Capsules, purchased at your drugstore I am 20 years old and reside at 767 Bennett st, this city. I was born in Marion. I have a large number of friends and acquaintances that know me, especially at the Commercial Steel Casting Co They remember me as being troubled with anemia with an unsightly skin disturbance, the result of bad blood conditions. Prior to taking Diamond Blood Capsules I spent $500 to $600 with serum treatments, etc., without any special benefit During the last two years my condition was such that I was frequently unable to work for many days at a time. Cliff Waiters of Leader st., a friend, directed my attention to Diamond Blood Capsules Three months ago, I purchased my first bottle of capsules at your store. In all to date I have taken three large bottles. Believe it or not, my skin is clearing up My strength is better than at any other time in my life. My blood is back to normal. You have my full permission to use this letter publicly in order that others now suffering may be able to regain their health.
Respectfully,
Willard Larcom.

The above letter is an example of the reception accorded our Diamond Blood Building Capsules.
Concentrated liver with all its properties for producing rich new blood combined with cleansing agencies to drive poison and impurities from your system and cleanse your blood and you have the story of Diamond Blood Building capsules.
For them, we do not claim they are a "cure-all," but we do claim that regardles of the nature of your ailment, if you are in a weakened condition of any sort or failing in any way, you will not make a mistake in taking Diamond Blood Building capsules

The Stars Say--

For Friday, June 19

A FAIRLY active and progressive day is forecast from the ruling sidereal influences. In business, personal affairs and important enterprises there is promise of much stimulus and aggressive attack. Writings and private influences may bring advantages despite some minor disappointment or thwarted wish

Those whose birthday it is are assured a fairly successful year, with the energies and faculties well stimulated to initiative and bold projects. There may be some minor setbacks or postponements or anxieties in employment Personal affairs may also be active and gratifying, with realizations happily, on business. A child born on this day should be active and aggressive as well as personally gracious and popular. It should do well in almost any artistic or literary vocation.

Lee was taken to the hospital suffering with a broken jaw and other injuries administered by Austin when he refused to pay for liquor he is said to have bought from the Mt Vernon man

Summer Slump in Industry Reflected by Lack of Buying Interest in Market.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 18 — The stock market was lulled to sleep today by the increasing midsummer lull in industry.

Some prices again drifted a little lower but the decline reflected a lack of buying interest rather than any pressure selling, as trading continued at the slow pace to which the market was accustomed before the "new era" days of 1927-1929.

Among a handful of shares getting down 2 to 3 points were American Telephone, Case, Eastman, Industrial Alcohol, Johns Manville, Southern Pacific & Rock Island, Youngstown Sheet slipped more than 4. Most losses, however, ranged from fractions to a point, with such issues as U. S. Industrial Alcohol, American Can and American Tobacco meet periodic support. The common pushed up 5 points, but lost part of its gain. Motors gained more than a point on announcement of a contract supply General Motors will buy all of its glass requirements and the New York Central rallied.

Specialties were steadier as some of the gloomy picture painted by the freight rate petitioners and Wall Street forecasters inclined to the belief that relief would be granted. Current trends of Southern Pacific and Cotton Belt reflected the exchange offer made to cotton belt minority stockholders. While one share of three Southern Pacific preferred and one Southern Pacific for three Cotton Belt common is equivalent to only around half the price suggested by the interstate commerce commission examiner the market action of the stocks has indicated that there has been little hope of a settlement anywhere near that suggested by the examiner.

Judge Fines Brother for Traffic Violation

By International News Service.

VAN NUYS, Calif.—The age-old law of brotherly love has no place in Judge Clifford Thompson's court. The judge's brother, Dr. R. L. Thompson was cited into court for speeding. The traffic tag also said the doctor's car was without a tail light.

Ordinarily Judge Thompson suspended tail light tags.

"Five dollars for speeding and $2 for the absence of tail light," the judge ordered.

"And now doctor, the last time I was ill do you remember what you prescribed for me?" Judge Thompson asked.

"Sure I do. I made you take a dose of castor oil," Dr. Thompson declared.

"Yes, I can taste it yet," the judge grimaced. "Next case."

Producing Loss Found Profitable for Growers

DENVER — Produce less and make more money, is the plan Robert and Jess Patterson of Greeley, Colo., fellow raisers, have found most successful. In the summer they produce lettuce on their high-altitude farm near Greeley. In the winter they raise lettuce in southern Arizona. By shipping their crop to a market gardening city that they can produce a higher quality of lettuce than is known there is produced in the summer. They report they have made as high as $600 an acre net profit each year.

RAIN REPORTS CAUSE SLUMP

Wheat Prices Decline as Drouth Is Broken in World's Crop Areas.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 18—Reports of heavy rains in big sections of the Canadian drouth region led to lower prices for wheat early today. Favorable weather for crops in France replacing prolonged adverse conditions, was also noted. Opening ⅛@⅜ cents lower, wheat afterward held near the initial limits. Corn started ¼ off to ¼ up and subsequently showed firmness.

Advices that Russia had chartered vessels for 100,000 tons of grains acted as a weight on the wheat market. Bears made much also of summaries indicating that crop conditions in domestic spring wheat states, except the western third of North Dakota and the eastern third of Montana had benefitted by recent rains and seasonable temperature. Special attention was likewise given to definite announcements that the federal farm board would not pledge itself to withhold stabilization wheat from domestic markets for another year.

One trade authority laid particular stress on assertions that the wheat market was burned by the fact that 200,000,000 bushels of wheat in the United States was held in the hands of one agency under what might be termed a unified control. He added it was obvious from the action of markets abroad that European importers had no intention of readjusting prices upward in the face of this big holding. However, a fair amount of overnight export business in the United States old crop winter wheat was indicated. Absence of selling pressure strengthened corn. Oats were responsive to increased movement of the new crop. Provisions went higher with hog values.

Hoover Dam Builders Brave Danger To Do Their Work in Black Canyon

By The Associated Press

LAS VEGAS, Nevada—Hand over hand 50 feet down a rope dangling over the precipice that faces Black canyon—that's all in a day's work for the men engaged in the preliminary work of building Hoover dam.

It's the way they go to work and it's the way they go home from work, for the point where they are engaged is the middle of the cliff, some 60 to 70 feet above the murky flow of the Colorado river.

They are drilling and blasting out a niche where will be anchored one end of a large cable tramway reaching across the big stream.

Eleven Cable Trains

A total of about 1 of these cables will be installed between the bluff walls of Black canyon to furnish fast transportation from one side of the river to the other. The first is being cut less than a mile upstream from the actual dam site.

A rope more than 100 feet long hangs from the cliff above. To get to the scene of their labors the jackhammer men must cross the river by boat, climb up the cliff, then lower themselves over the precipice 50 feet down the sheer rock walls.

At night they go down the rope to a waiting boat.

A compressed air feed pipe line was stretched across the river from the more accessible rim on the Nevada side, where large compressors are run.

First a cable was strung across the 300-foot chasm, then the two-inch compressor air pipe was pushed across, section by section, by men hanging precariously to a slim cable suspended below the main cable on wire loops.

Power thus reaches the jackhammers as holes are drilled in the "Eagle's Nest" spot where the stout anchor for the tram cable will be imbedded.

At another point some 50 feet above the water level, jackhammer men are working in a man made groove about 200 feet long, chipping their way along the face of the cliff, cutting out a right of way for the railroad trains which will carry debris from the dam site.

At this outpost of the project the crew works in shifts continuously—day and night. At still another sector, road crews are fighting their way along the rock walls, digging out a highway to connect Boulder City and the dam site.

Between the floor of the niche and the ceiling a heavy bar is clamped in a vertical position. On this there are two arm shaped bars, sturdily built, which support the heavy jackhammers.

When the holes are completed, powder is placed and the explosion which follows rips out huge sections of rock. All equipment must be carried out prior to the blast and then moved back afterward.

In few instances in railroad construction have there been so many perils and difficulties to be overcome.

Beauty Expert Suggests Honey Facial for Complexion Tonic

BY JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON

HONEY facials have been an accepted part of beauty culture for many long years, but, because they came down through the ages, modern beauty culture ignored them for some time. Several years ago we brought them forth again and today they rank high among the really beneficial facials given to women in reliable shops.

The honey pack we are going to discuss today is excellent for drawing impurities out of the pores for refreshing the skin so that it sparkles with life and, in addition to this, it will nourish loose flabby skin and muscles so that lines are smoothed out and a general refining and lifting of the skin and muscles result. What more can you hope to find from one type of treatment?

Pure strained honey should be used and it is the same variety that is used for cooking.

The skin should be cleansed with cream and after its removal with cleansing tissues or a soft cloth, hot compresses should be applied. Just wring a folded cloth out in water as hot as you can stand it. Twelve or fifteen of these hot compresses should be applied, a fresh hot one being substituted as soon as the one in use begins to cool.

Following the hot compresses a good nourishing cream should be massaged into the skin. It is not necessary to use the deep-kneading and pinching massage movements for this treatment, but special attention other than gently smoothing the cream over the skin in an upward and outward direction should be given to the area around the eyes and mouth.

Direction of Massage

Here the old favorite of encircling each eye fifty times should be followed. Placing the tip of the third finger on the upper lid near the bridge of the nose, draw it lightly out to the end of the eye and then bring it back to the nose under the eye. This movement works against the direction of the lines under the eyes and helps to set the tissues and muscles back in their normal position for the time being. Repeated daily, this action gives the same results that proper exercises accomplish in hardening and adjusting muscles of the abdomen when they have become relaxed and so fallen.

For treating the mouth, place the tips of the fingers at the corners of the mouth and then work them up toward the wings of the nose by sweeping them briskly across the line which usually runs from the nostrils to the corners of the mouth. Sweep the fingers out across the line, lift them from the face and bring them back to the original position, thus you avoid working back over the line which would be contrary to proper massage movements.

Remove some of the cream at the end of the massage but not all of it for a little of the nourishing cream left on the skin serves as an excellent base for the honey, which is applied directly after the massage.

Smooth a liberal amount of honey over the entire face and throat and then pat the skin lightly for fifteen or twenty minutes. Being sticky, the honey pulls the skin up a little with each pat, giving splendid stimulation to the muscles and tissues.

Remove the honey with warm towels, gradually cooling their temperature until a really cold one is used. Finish off the treatment with the ice massage, pat the face dry and then apply a mild skin tonic.

When this dries you may apply your make-up if taken just before retiring, the skin should be left free until morning.

May be taken daily for a couple of weeks, then twice each week until the skin has reached the condition you desire.

Visiting Motorists To Get "Welcome Stranger" Tags

Out-of-Town Drivers Who Violate Traffic Rules To Be Given Warning Instead of Ticket to Police Court; Auto Club Backs Plan.

Motorists from out of the city who are guilty of some minor infringment of the city traffic ordinance instead of being given the regulation tag by the police requesting their appearance in traffic court, are given a tag bearing on the one side the words "Welcome Stranger. Marion extends to you the glad hand and hopes you will return early and often." Signed by the Marion Auto club and the Marion police department.

On the reverse side of the tag, however, is the warning that the tag will not exempt them from arrest for parking in safety zones, near fire hydrants or in alleys or driveways.

The tags are provided by the Marion Auto club with the thought of extending every courtesy to strangers, Mrs. D. V. Gallagher, secretary of the club, said today.

The tags are one feature of the club's program of activities for the summer, Mrs. Gallagher said. Other features were the elimination of the amber lens from the traffic lights and the campaign to provide more parking space in the downtown section by securing the agreement of merchants and business man not to park their cars on the streets, during the day.

The club has also painted and replaced the school signs, as well as the sign directing to the Harding memorial and the Harding home, provided new quiet signs at the City hospital and provided for the erection of the sign posts throughout the county.

Police Chief Marks as well as other members of the police department, express themselves as well pleased with the change in the traffic lights by the elimination of the amber lens. The two red lights not only discourages motorists from starting before they have the right of way, Chief Marks said, but does much in helping hold traffic in case of a fire when the lights are held on the center lens.
